Latest range of Laminex colours, patterns and wood grains

New design, lasting finish

KATE LEMMON

TAKING the latest in international design and giving it a distinct Australian flavour, the latest update to the Laminex Colour Palette introduces never before seen decors to create inspired Ipswich interiors.

Twenty-two new decors consisting of solids, abstract designs, stone patterns and wood grains have made their debut in the biggest Laminex Colour Palette revamp in the past four years.

This brings the Laminex Colour Palette to a total of 216 colours available for Ipswich home builders and home renovators to choose from.

Laminex marketing manager Jared Dinneen said identifying the most directional designs and colours from Europe and adapting them to meet the Australian market meant they had created a striking intensity to the Laminex Colour Palette.

"This has resulted in an extraordinary collection of decors that adds a new dimension to the Laminex Colour Palette,"

Mr Dinneen said.

"This makes it possible for consumers to explore new combinations of tones and hues in the design of a truly unique interior space."

The range of 22 exciting new decors can be integrated across an array of vertical and horizontal surfaces, including benchtops, cabinetry, doors, panels and more, to combine aesthetic appeal with durability, creating the ultimate interior.

Designed to endure the day-to-day challenges of interior environments, Laminex Colour Palette laminates are backed by an impressive seven-year limited warranty to ensure outstanding interior looks are the envy of others year after year.

Matching edging is available to ensure a seamless finish.

The full updated Laminex Colour Palette is available now.
